

A Tailor; A. Johnson

The Wonderful Career of One of the Presidents Recalled

BY W. A. ROYSE

The campaign that has just passed and the talk of rewarding some of the gold Democrats recalls the Andrew Johnson incident. Daniel S. Dickinson had been one of the most prominent loyal Democrats, and it seemed that he certainly would be named, but there arose internal differences in the delegation, and it was impossible for the members to agree to the selection of Mr. Dickinson, and then, too, it was found that the friends of Mr. Dickinson would consent to no other man than that States. While the argument was at its height Henry J. Raymond suggested the name of Andrew Johnson, then war governor of Tennessee.

The Old Shop of "A. Johnson, Tailor"

Mr. Johnson had previously been in the Senate and was recognized by all as a thoroughly loyal man, but one who was working at that time merely because he considered those fighting against the Union traitors, and not because he thought the principle they upheld was wrong. Mr. Johnson was a firm advocate of the right of a State to secede from the Union, but was just as strongly opposed to seceding by firing on a United States fort. He held that the first act of the seceding State was treason, and that the Southern States could not legally leave the Union until they had come back and made amends for the treasonous firing on Fort Sumter.

Miss Brown, Fire Girl

A LITTLE WOMAN URGES ON THE MEN AND NURSES THE INJURED

The awful forebodings of enemies of the new woman that she would take to fighting fires has come true. Here is a fire-woman. Miss Lillian Brown, of Greensboro, N. C., is her name and address. She has been officially adopted by the North Carolina State Firemen's Association. Her favorite father, of whom she, as a daughter, has over a thousand, are in Greensboro, where she was first adopted by the Eagle Hose Company, every man of which is as proud of his adopted daughter as she was proud of her adopted father as she was a queen. Never a fire occurs without the firemen's daughter being on the scene, and to see her dressed in her red flannel fire clothes, helmeted, and with an ax in her dainty hands, as she urges the "boys" on to conquer their blazing foe, is a sight to remind one of the heroic acts of Joan d'Arc.

Miss Brown, Fire Girl

There is not a single thing in the science of fire-fighting that Miss Brown does not know, and her quick eye grasps the situation of a blaze in a second. As soon as she sees the flames she knows exactly which way they will spread, and in an instant she realizes the point which should be first attacked. There is a curious train of circumstances leading up to the adoption of Miss Brown by the fire boys. She was born in Fairfield, N. C. Her first appearance in Greensboro was about three and a half years ago, when she entered the female college there. It so happened that, being of a bright and lively mind, she was assigned to play the leading role in the drama "The Fireman's Heart," at the college students' annual performance. The play was produced at Bogart Opera House, and was a tremendous success. As a result of this, Miss Brown literally captured every heart in the audience, and especially those of the fire boys. Soon after this, at the regular monthly meeting of the Eagle Hose Company, Miss Brown was formally adopted as the firemen's daughter, and her name was placed upon the honorary roll of the company's membership. The new fire girl gracefully accepted the honor and pledged herself to advance the cause of firemen in general, and especially the interest of her new-made fathers, the Eagles. Miss Brown carried off the honors with a modest bearing, and soon her fame spread to different parts of the State. Town after town wanted to have her for its adopted daughter, and many meetings were called to consider the subject. All difficulties were finally surmounted at the meeting of the State Firemen's Association, when, by a unanimous vote, the pet of the Greensboro boys was made a daughter of the State association. This is the only case on record of a girl being connected with a fire department, and the honor is felt to be as great by the hardy life-savers as it is by Miss Brown herself. Always the "daughter of the company" boasts two medals for bravery displayed at fires, and several resolutions have been passed and sent to her by different bodies of citizens, who owe to her plucky work many thousands of dollars. The North Carolina boys have always been considered a brave set of men, but their energies are redoubled whenever the eye of their daughter is in them.

At the annual meeting of the Current Events Club held at the residence of Mrs. Jane McLean Friday afternoon...

The Anthropological Society held their annual election of officers on Tuesday evening at the Cosmos Club. Those selected are: Dr. Frank Baker, president; Prof. W. J. McGee, Mr. George R. Stetson; Gen. Geo. M. Sternberg and Dr. Cyrus Adler, vice presidents; Dr. J. H. McCormick, general secretary; Weston F. Pitts, secretary; board of managers, P. B. Pierce, treasurer; F. W. Hodge, curator; J. O. Wilson, J. D. McGuire, Thomas Wilson, J. H. Hodgett, Dr. J. W. Fewkes and Dr. George M. Kober, councillors.

The Current Events Club holds semi-monthly meetings at the homes of the members. It was organized for the busy women, the housekeepers, school teachers, school girls and those in office, so that they may keep up with the going of the day, and follow the trend of events by preparing papers upon current topics or listening to those read before the club. The membership is limited to thirty. During the past year an original paper was read by Mrs. J. H. McCormick, on "The Australian laborer, capital and labor, vivisection and other subjects." A feature of each meeting is the parliamentary drill led by Mrs. Dr. E. H. Grant.

The Washington Club is one of the most exclusive women's clubs of the District. They have their home in a three-story and basement brown-stone front, "uptown," of course, and the house is of generous width, with a bay front, the trend of events in the member, to get beyond the threshold, but once inside one sees luxurious surroundings. The parlors on the left of the entrance hall are furnished splendidly and there is everything to attract the eye. It was within these quiet precincts on Tuesday that Mrs. Virginia Butler told the story of her trip to Sweden last summer. She illustrated her talk with fine stereoscopic views. Many society ladies were the patronesses. Among them were Mrs. Thos. H. Baker, Mrs. Richard Townsend, Mrs. L. Z. Lister, Mrs. Tomer, Lady Pauncefote, and Mrs. Palmetto.

WHEN GRANT WAS POOR.

A Time in His Career When He Needed the Wherewithal.

Gen. W. H. L. Barnes, one of the leaders of the San Francisco bar, at a recent meeting of the California Commandery of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion, told a story about Gen. Grant which is said never before to have been printed. It was told years ago to Gen. Barnes by Capt. Richard Ogden, once clerk in the office of the United States quartermaster at San Francisco, and Gen. Barnes recently copied it from Capt. Ogden's diary. It was that when Grant resigned his commission as captain, at the age of thirty-two, he went to San Francisco on his way home and rendered to Capt. Ogden a certificate for per diem service on a court-martial, amounting to about $40. The certificate was incorrectly drawn, and Grant, with a look of despair, asked Capt. Ogden's permission to sleep on the lounge in the latter's office, saying he had not a cent in his name. He slept on the rickety office lounge, and Ogden agreed to cash the certificate personally and to send it back to Oregon for correction. Grant had expected to buy passage for himself to New York in the steamer, but Ogden went with him to the Pacific Mail Steamship office and procured for him a cabin passage pass, or what was the nearest to it the steamship company could give. For Grant had to pay his railroad fare across the isthmus. This, however, left him $15, and Grant was very grateful.

The diary quotes him as saying to Capt. Ogden: "This is a great luxury and what I did not expect, and I am indebted to you for it. The prospect of ever being able to respicinate is certainly remote, but strange things happen in this world, and there is no knowing."

Mr. Asbury Peppers.

"Why do they say 'as smart as a steel trap'?" asked the talkative boarder. "I never could see anything particularly intelligent about a steel-trap," explained Mr. Asbury Peppers in his sweetest voice, "because it knows exactly the right time to shut up."

Sarab's Culler.

"You say a centlema called—did he leave his card?" "You don't leave cards when you find folks. In do you, ma'am?" "Not always, Sarah."

Out and In Among the Capital Clubs

The sociable of Winodoughis Tuesday evening was made very interesting by a delightful talk by Prof. MERRILL, of the Columbian University. He is the author of several books on geology, and his topic was "Gnyx and Marble." There was a very large audience, and they expressed their pleasure at the address.

The Arch Club, composed of over 600 ladies, prominent in intellectual and social circles of Chicago, have invited Prof. Merrill to accept a place in their lecture course, and he has accepted, for early in February. The Academy of Porty, one of the recollections of Winodoughis, is a society to promote the art of conversation; meetings are held in the parlors at 1425 New York avenue, and a paper is presented by one of the members, which opens a discussion which all participate in. Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock the subject was pre-natal education.

Miss Belle C. Saunders was director and many fine thoughts were brought out.

At the annual meeting of the Current Events Club held at the residence of Mrs. Jane McLean Friday afternoon, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Mrs. J. B. North, president; Miss Cora McLean, vice president; Miss Theodora North, secretary; Mrs. J. H. Simpson, treasurer; Mrs. Dr. Grant, leader of parliamentary drill; Mrs. E. L. Sherwood, Mrs. E. H. Grant and Mrs. Rider were appointed a committee on program. After the election of delegates to the Mothers' Congress Mrs. Rider read an excellent paper from the standpoint of an anti-vivisectionist. Mrs. E. L. Sherwood gave a sketch of the life of Nathaniel Hawthorne. The discussion of these papers was participated in by all. At 4:30 the hostess served refreshments and adjournment was had till the 12th of February at Mrs. Rider's.

Mrs. Belva Lockwood's paper on "Arbitration," read before the Continental Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution at the Eisemere, was a fine effort.
